
WINNER OF GRAND PRIZE AT LAWSON'S

PERFECT ATTENDANCE

Tammy Carter is shown above receiving "Cross pin" from Mrs. Mildred Thompson, her Sunday School teacher, being awarded for not having missed a Sunday from Sunday School this year . . . in fact, Tammy has not missed a single Sunday for the past six years.

Give Your Band A Boost & A Box

The Appomattox County High School Band would like for all its friends to help them collect CREST toothpast boxes (7 ounce size) for the purpose of claiming the refund now offered per box by the Crest Toothpast Company.

Drug-boxes will be made available at all local stores selling Crest and at all local football games by the gate.

You keep the toothpaste - give us the box.

GIVE YOUR BAND A BOOST AND A BOX, it will be greatly appreciated.

JUNIOR CLASS REPORT '76 - '77

The 1976 - 77 Junior Class is looking forward to a fun and exciting year this year. Many fund-raising and service projects have been planned for this year. It looks like we're off to a good start with our large and enthusiastic junior class along with a dose of moral support from our terrific sponsor, Mrs. Covington. Our class officers for this year are as follows: President - Linda George, Vice-President - Nancy Stratton, Secretary - Lonnett Reynolds, Treasurer - Veronica Franklin, Reporter - Marzetta Hodnett, Chaplin - Robin Moore, Historican - Anthony Johnson, Parlimentarian - Cindy Morris.

The first official meeting of the junior class was held on Wednesday, September 22, 1976. The meeting was called to order by our president, Linda George. The minutes were read and approved along with the treasurer's report. A bit of important information is that the Prom will be held on Saturday, May 14, 1977. After the business of the meeting, the class broke up into committees which discussed plans for our float, the band for the prom, and the theme of the prom. Out of these committees came a lot of original ideas.

As for other news, out two beautiful home-coming princesses were Martha Kelso and Shelly Davison. The juniors received their class rings on Friday, September 24, 1976. We hope that everyone was satisfied with their rings.

Heck Is Attending School of Theology

SEWANEE, TENN. - William Raymond Heck is a student at the School of Theology of the University of the South for the year 1976-77. The school opened this fall with the largest entering class since 1958 and the fourth largest in its 98-year history.

Heck attended the New York State Ranger School and was a surveyor and road engineer with Westvaco Pulp and Paper Company in Virginia prior to entering the seminary.

He is married to the former Kathleen A. O'Neil of New York, and they have a son, Kyle. He is in the Class of 1978 and is sponsored by the Diocese of Southern Virginia. The Heck's spent the summer in Uniondale, N.Y., where he completed his clinical pastoral education at the Paterson Home for the Aging. He is the son of Horace Heck of 30 Prospect Street, Mt. Kisco, NY.

The School of Theology, known informally as St. Luke's is one of the 14 Episcopal seminaries in the continental United States and is located in a rural area of the Cumberland Plateau in south central Tennessee.

Quiet as a church mouse.
by Fidelity American Bank

MIKE, AFTER DUE CONSIDERATION, I'VE DECIDED THAT CHANGING OUR NAME TO FIDELITY AMERICAN BANK IS THE PROPER THING TO DO.
GOOD, I THOUGHT YOU'D FINALLY SEE IT OUR WAY, JASON.
YES, I CAN HARDLY WAIT TO SEE THE NEW OFFICES.* THEY'LL PROBABLY BE ULTRA-CONTEMPORARY, SET IN A QUAINT WOODED LOT. ALL NEW FURNITURE AND EQUIPMENT. AND NEW PERSONNEL. WHY, WHEN MY FRIENDS, THE McMOUSES, HEAR ABOUT THIS, THEY'LL SIMPLY...
WAIT A MINUTE, JASON! YOU'RE MISSING THE WHOLE POINT. THEY'RE CHANGING THE NAME, BUT THAT'S ALL. EVERYTHING ELSE WILL BE EXACTLY THE SAME. THE BUILDING, THE PEOPLE, THE SERVICES—ALL THE SAME.
HORSEFEATHERS! THAT TELLER THAT WAS A BLONDE YESTERDAY. TODAY SHE'S A REDHEAD!

GOOD NEWS FOR HOMEMAKERS

HOME STORAGE OF VEGETABLES

Fall is a wonderful time in the vegetable garden. The hard work of planting and weed control has been completed. The harvesting of delicious vegetables is an easy and pleasant job.

You may have been canning or freezing your surplus during the summer. Some of you may be getting more vegetables from your late gardens than earlier because of dry weather conditions this summer. Now you should plan to store potatoes, onions, and other crops to help reduce your food bill during the fall and winter.

Modern houses do not have the desirable storage places which were formerly available in most town and country homes. If you look around however, and do a bit of innovating, you may find you can locate some good storage facilities.

Cool damp cellars are fine for beets, carrots, and white potatoes or winter type cabbage. The room should be dark. Be sure to provide ventilation to avoid a musty condition. If you basement is quite cool, preferably below 40 degrees, your stored crops may last for several months. A dry unheated basement may be used by covering your produce with slightly damp peat moss, or with plastic to reduce water loss.

If a suitable place is not available in the house, you may store your root crops, potatoes and cabbage in an unheated garage or tool shed. The temperature will remain at a more uniform low level if the building is insulated.

Place the produce in barrels or boxes to exclude light, but do provide some ventilation. The use of peat moss, sawdust, or plastic will help reduce water loss as suggested for basement storage. As the temperature gets colder in early winter you may need to add insulation to avoid damage by freezing.

A small but practical pit-type storage can be made at the edge of the garden, from a wooden barrel or metal drum. Lay the barrel or drum on its side and make a hole several inches square at the top of the solid end, which was the bottom when the barrel stood upright. This will provide the needed ventilation. Cover with a piece of quarter inch hardware cloth type wire screen to keep out mice and other rodents. Make a cover to fit tightly over the open end.

Cover your barrel-type pit storage with several inches of straw, coarse dry weeds, corn stalks, or other material. Then add several inches of soil. Dig this soil from around your pit storage to provide extra drainage during rainy periods. Additional insulation in the form of corn stalks or evergreen boughs may be needed to prevent freezing in severe cold weather.

Winter type onions such as Ebenezer will keep for several months in a cool dry place. A temperature below 40 degrees is preferred. Be sure the onion necks are dry and shrunken before harvest. This indicates proper maturity and good storage life. Check onions frequently to see if they are keeping.

You may harvest tomatoes when the fruits turn light green or pink on the end. They will ripen slowly and keep for four to six weeks in a moderately dry basement at about 60 degrees termperature. Peppers will keep for several ... if stored at about 50 degrees.

Sweet potatoes are quite easy to store. Dig the roots carefully to avoid bruising. Cure them for about ten days at 80 degrees. They will keep for several months if stored at about 60 degrees in a moderately dry basement.

Winter type squash and pumpkins may be stored successfully in a moderately dry basement at about 60 degrees. Place on a shelf or counter. Do not store on a damp concerete floor.

Be sure that all the produce you store is firm, properly matured, and free of insect and disease damage. It is a waste of time and energy to store inferior vegetables. And remember to check over your stored vegetables frequently. One rotten vegetable can spoil many others.

VA QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q - I was recently honorably discharged from service after serving two years on active duty. I have not completed high school. Can I complete high school and continue in a vocational program?

A - Eligible veterans can complete their high school training with no charge against entitlement. They may then use their entitlement for further training as desired.

Q - I used my GI loan to purchase my present home. I have a veteran who wants to purchase my home and assume my GI loan. If I do this, can my entitlement be restored?

A - Yes, if the purchaser is a veteran who has entitlement to a GI loan and agrees to substitute the same amount of his or her entitlement as was used on your loan and the purchaser is approved by the VA as to income and credit.

Help — From American Red Cross

Financially, it has been a disastrous year for the American Red Cross.

But, when weighed by accomplishments, it has been a proud year for the humanitarian organization.

Its volunteers and staff have fed, sheltered and cared for disaster victims in every state and in such far-flung locales as Guam and Guatemala. The catastrophes have ranged from earthquakes to typhoons, from tornadoes and floods to fires.

In so doing, the American Red Cross has expended a staggering $35 million in assistance. It's a whopping figure, the largest relief expenditure in the history of the organization's 95 years of giving this kind of help. Some of the disasters received prominence in the press and on radio and television. Others received little notice. Typhoon Pamela's rampaging sweep across Guam is an example. The May storm left over 20,000 families with losses. The Red Cross flew in 74 relief specialists from the Mainland and Hawaii to assist Guam Red Cross volunteers. The relief costs for this little know disaster came to $11 million.

To help offset this year's drain on Red Cross resources, a nationwide special fund campaign has been launched for $10 million. This amount will be needed so the organization will be ready when nature's future blows occur. The Red Cross is all too aware that the hurricane season is upon us and it must be ready to pay bills for the help that must be supplied in the immediate aftermath of any disaster, long before federal disaster aid can be brought to bear.

We say "must" because under the Red Cross' 1905 Congressional charter, the Red Cross must help "mitigate the sufferings" caused by natural calamities. It can't-and we all can be thankful for this-turn its back on Americans who fall victim to these calamities.

We believe each of us has a responsibility to help the Red Cross by donating to the special fund appeal. Write a check to our local chapter earmarked for Red Cross disaster relief. We depend upon the Red Cross to fulfill its obligations. Let's fulfill ours.

Arts And Crafts Feature of Festival

During the Fourth Annual Historic Appomattox Railroad Festival, the Appomattox Depot Station will house numerous exhibits of arts and crafts. Sidewalk space outside the depot will also be utilized for displays of this nature.

The Historic Appomattox Station Arts and Crafts Center members will participate, together with independent craftsmen and artists from Appomattox, surrending counties, areas of Virginia and out-of-state.

Crafts on display will be traditional handmade or handicrafted items with a Civil War, Bicentennial, Americana or railroad related emphasis. Categories include: ceramics, leather work, knitted and crocheted items, quilts, wood carvings, hand painted items, decoupage, pottery, corn husk dolls, basket weaving, handmade jewelry, sketching, portraits and oil paintings, handmade soap items, herbs and spices, antiques, and home grown plants.

As an added attraction, a variety of demonstrations will be given by a number of craftsmen selling their wares. These will include: leather craft, basket weaving, wood carving, quilting, soap making and herb drying. A local youth will also demonstrate his thumbprint art.

Come early for those sought after handmade Christmas gifts or have a portrait of your child sketched by Mrs. Holsveig of Roanoke who will be on hand again this year. There will be several other artists doing sketching as well.

There will not be any commercial items sold in the depot this year so therefore a much more unique variety of wares will be displayed for sale.

"History of Campbell County" To Be Published

RUSTBURG - ...ne lines here in recorded are intended to renew our interest and reaffirm our faith in our frontier beginning and accomplishments in Campbell County.

This sentence from its preface outlines the purpose behind a forthcoming history of Campbell County - "Lest It Be Forgotten -- A Scrapbook of Campbell County Virginia" published by the Historical Committee of the Campbell Co... Bicentennial Commission.

...ne forthcoming history is a book about Campbell County by Campbell County.

In tracing the men, ideas, religion, events and features of Campbell County from 1735 to 1860, the committee has drawn its texts from 10 county residents.

Each of these contributors has written on a subject of which he or she has had an interest previously.

In tracing the development of various religious denominations in the county, the committee called on persons of each religion to trace his church's history.

The history and contributions of the Staunton River is outlined by Herman Ginther, whose "Captian Staunton's River" already has contributed to the historic knowledge of that area of the county.

Similarly, the James River story is told by T. Gibson Hobbs, who has been active in preserving the antiquites of that river region and in efforts to form a park to further this preservation.

The men who helped shape Campbell County are portrayed in articles on Col. James Callaway, Col. Charles Lynch, Robert Adams, and Maj. John Ward.

Archie Monroe has chronicled the Black man's contributions to the growth of Campbell County during that period.

Since Campbell County was not formed from Bedford County until 1782, the tales of Campbell County during the Revolution cannot be seperated from Bedford County. The two counties were united then and the history of that period is melded, giving a history of Bedford as well as Campbell County.

The saga of the common man in Campbell County is captured in his homes, his farm buildings and the other structures he built. This history is related by Bernard Herman, who has studied the architecture of that period.
